MISSOULA--

Central Board, the governing body of the Associated Students of the University of Montana (ASUM), has voted unanimously to support a monthly Well-Child Clinic at the University Center for the remainder of the school year. The Well-Child Clinics are sponsored by the Missoula City-County Health Department in cooperation with Missoula-area pediatricians.

The Well-Child Clinics are aimed at checking the health of young children. Nursing and supportive services are free of charge except for vaccines, which are provided at cost.

Thomas A. Stockburger, Billings, ASUM president, said that ASUM will pick up the cost of operating one clinic per month at the University Center. Similar clinics have aided many families in Missoula over the past several years.

In urging all University students with children to take advantage of this service, Stockburger said, "It's about time that more care be given our children, and for ASUM to support the Well-Child Clinics is a most progressive step."

The clinics are tentatively scheduled to be held from 9 a.m.-noon on the second Tuesday of each month. The first clinic is slated for Nov. 12.
